

SONDAGES - CONTRÔLE DES ARMES / REGISTRE

Léger Marketing – Canada – 21 au 23 décembre 2009

Recently, new legislation was introduced to eliminate the need to register rifles and shotguns.

While licenses to own are renewed periodically, registration is a one time only procedure that occurs when a gun is purchased.

A lot of money was spent setting up the system, but the current cost of registering rifles and shotguns is three million dollars a year.

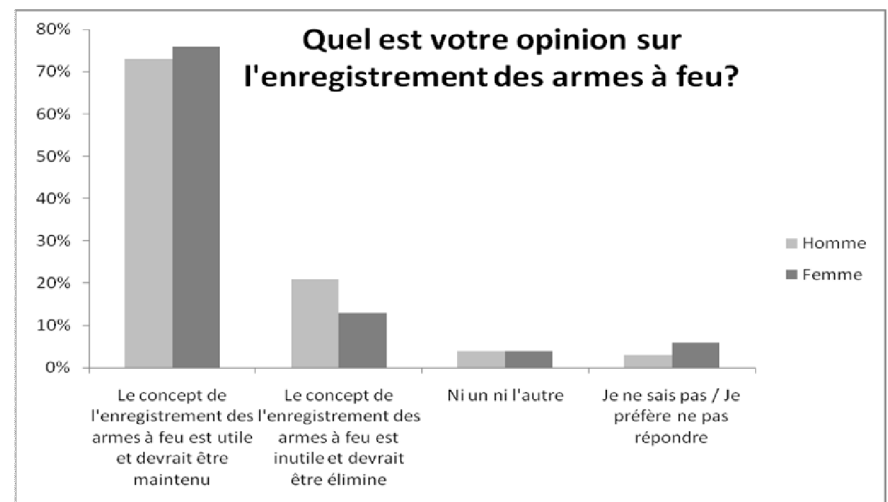

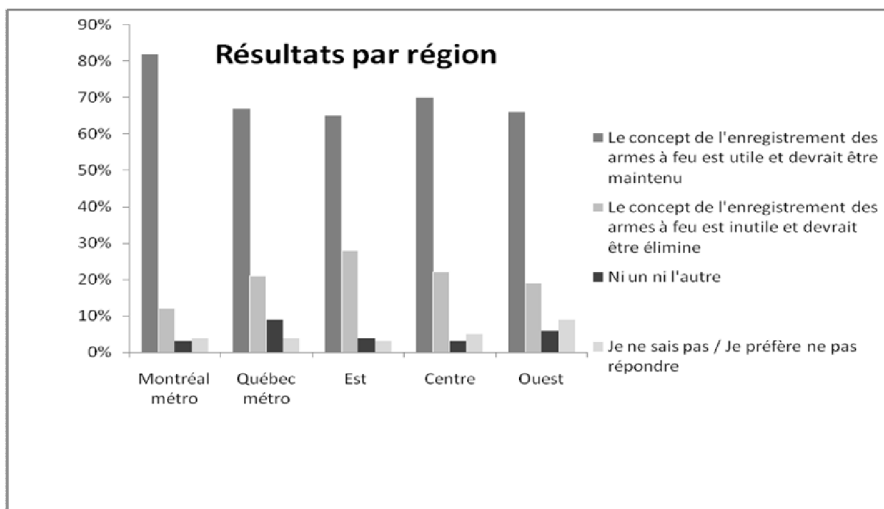

Some people say that registration ensures gun owners are accountable for their firearms and that the registry is an important tool used daily by police to prevent and investigate crime. Others say that registering guns unduly burdens gun owners, is of no use and should be eliminated.

Question : Un projet de loi fédéral vise l'élimination du registre pour les 7 millions armes d'épaules, c'est-à-dire l'ensemble des fusils et les carabines. Bien que les permis de possession soient périodiquement renouvelés, l'enregistrement ne se fait qu'une seule fois, au moment de l'achat de l'arme. Beaucoup d'argent a été dépensé pour mettre le système en place, mais le coût actuel pour l'enregistrement des fusils et carabines est de trois millions de dollars par année. Certains disent que l'enregistrement responsabilise les propriétaires face aux armes à feu qu'ils détiennent et que le registre est un outil important utilisé de façon quotidienne par la police pour prévenir le crime et mener des enquêtes criminelles. D'autres disent que le registre représente un fardeau excessif pour les propriétaires d'armes, qu'il n'a pas d'utilité et qu'il devrait être aboli. Laquelle des ces opinions correspond le mieux à la vôtre ?

Getting rid of the registry...

Gun registry support has picked up steam: Canadian Press poll

The Canadian Press Sep 07, 2010 16:01:59 PM

OTTAWA - A new poll suggests public opinion was shifting in favour of keeping the controversial long-gun registry, even before the RCMP issued its favourable evaluation last month.

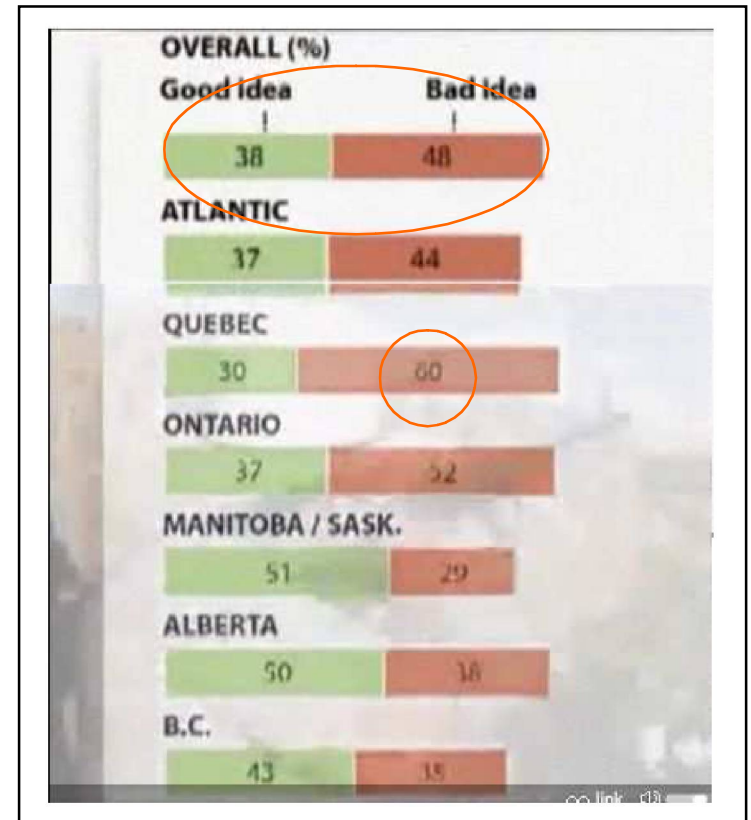

The late August poll by The Canadian Press Harris-Decima indicates that 48 per cent of respondents thought it would be a bad idea to get rid of the registry, up from 42 per cent in April and 41 per cent last November.

About 38 per cent thought it should be scrapped, down from 45 per cent in April and 46 per cent last November.

The shift in support for the registry came mainly among women, Ontarians and those earning between $60,000 and $100,000 a year.

The omnibus telephone poll of 1,000 people was conducted Aug. 26 to Aug. 29 — just before the Mounties released their analysis of the Canadian Firearms Program and said the registry should be maintained because it saves lives.

The survey has a margin of error of 3.1 percentage points, 19 times out of 20.

OTTAWA — Two-thirds of Canadians support the controversial long-gun registry and even voters who back Prime Minister Stephen Harper's Conservatives are split on the issue, a new poll has found. The national survey conducted exclusively for Postmedia News and Global Television finds that support for the registry stands at 66% nationally. Moreover, support is strong in regions throughout the country — even though Harper has said his party will not “rest” until it abolishes the registry. But the poll also finds that although Harper is running counter to public opinion on the issue, his stance is only deepening his support among fervent Tories and that the NDP risks losing votes in the next election among Canadians unhappy with that party's internal divisions. [...] The survey, conducted Sept. 27 to Oct. 4, comes in the wake of a highly publicized parliamentary battle in which Conservative MP Candice Hoepfner failed in her effort to abolish the registry. The new poll finds that support for the registry is highest in Quebec (81%), followed by Ontario (66%) British Columbia (61%), Atlantic Canada (59%) and Saskatchewan/Manitoba (57%). In Alberta, the only place where the majority oppose the registry, the public is split — with half (53%) in opposition and the other half (47%) in support.

POLLING CANADIANS ON THE GUN REGISTRY

Question: Do you personally support or oppose the gun-registry, which requires all owners of long-barreled guns to register their firearms on a national database.

NATIONAL POLL RESULTS

The research is based on telephone interviews conducted with a representative sample of 2,000 Canadians (aged 18 plus), between March 30 and April 10, 2011. A sample of this size drawn from the population will provide results accurate to within plus or minus 2.2 percentage points, in 19 out of 20 samples.

Deregulating Gun Ownership

“As you may know, there are federal laws in Canada concerning the ownership of firearms. This law requires that Canadians register each firearm that they own, prohibits the ownership of certain kinds of firearms, requires that owners pass a safety test AND a safety check, and requires that firearms are stored unloaded in a secure place. “

In general, do you strongly support, somewhat support, somewhat oppose or strongly oppose this law?
